

Dreams

Kenny Chesney

She says most men her age want younger women
She thinks her self-esteem is not quite itself anymore
But she sees herself as more than what the mirror shows
And why that's so important heaven only knows
When the important part for hers souls and hearts and

Dreams, sharin' a life and a home
Dreams, of never ever bein' alone again
Not even diamonds just a little gold
Someone there to hold her hand when she gets old

Dreams, the kind you know will never end
Forever lovers and forever friends
Someone really there to love and care and share, dreams

She swears she won't divorce a third time
She swears the more she knows about love
The harder it is to find, the perfect picture of her white horse prince
Is now dependability and common sense
Someone kind and brave, someone not afraid of

Dreams, sharin' a life and a home
Dreams, of never ever bein' alone again
Not even diamonds just a little gold
Someone there to hold her hand when she gets old

Dreams, the kind you know will never end
Forever lovers and forever friends
Someone really there to love and care and share, dreams

Oh dreams, the kind you know will never end
Forever lovers and forever friends
Someone really there to love and care and share, dreams

She says most men her age want younger women