

Love Lust

King Charles

Never let a woman go
Even when you know,
She can always be replaced,
she can always be replaced.
Oh lust only grows like anger and revenge.
Beauty comes and goes,
But love stays until the end.

Never let a woman go
Even when you know,
She can always be replaced,
she can always be replaced.
Oh lust only grows like anger and revenge.
Beauty comes and goes,
But love stays until the end.

I wrote you a song, Mississippi Isabel.
I even sent you flowers, when you felt ill.
You've the strength of the Greeks,
You are God's masterpiece.
You're every triumph, every victory.
I believe in every breath you breathe.

And I always imagined you'd be by my side.
Whether I'm hiding in the city
Or I'm tearing through the wild.
You're only a yoke, a noose in my throat.
If your beauty is a fortress,
Then my love will be the mote.

Oh fall in love with you
Fall in love with you I must.
Consume every part of you
To indulge my love lust.

Never let a woman go
Even when you know,
She can always be replaced,
she can always be replaced.
Oh lust only grows like anger and revenge.
Beauty comes and goes,
But love stays until the end.

Never let a woman go even when you know.

Whether a guitar in my hand
Or a gun in my hand.
I'd give it all up
For your hand in my hand.

For the sun on my skin
As the morning begins.
I'd die in the darkness to feel your skin on my skin.

Never let a woman go even when you know it.

Your soul.

Your love.
Your blood.

Treasure every beating heart,
That sets your soul on fire.
Love will set your soul on fire.
Love will set your soul on fire.