Days of Old Khancoban

Lee Kernaghan

I'm sitting here with memories Reading letters from old friends Dreaming I am back with those pals of mine In the good times once again I see the mountain trail We used to ride The Murray river flowing Where once stood the homestead of my youth In the days of old Khancoban Memories, sweet memories Of the days when we were younger We'd ride a hundred miles for a lady's smile To a dance at Tumbarumba

I hear the haunting strains of Hobble chains and bells on cattle roamin' As down the Toolong track I ride Going home to old Khancoban Hoof beats echo down the range From brumbies on the run White faced cattle string along through mist and morning sun Where the Geehi river meets the Murray With the song that never ends Like the everlasting mateship there In the handshake of a friend

Memories sweet memories Of the songs we sang together We were mustering then with the best of men And shared their saddle leather What a welcome sight When we were riding back To the homestead fire glowin' Through the dark of the night To see that guiding light Of home in old Khancoban Through the dark of the night To see that guiding light Of home in old Khancoban
