

The Start of Something Else

Lifer

Losing the faith that you used to have in yourself
A child believing
Afraid of hearing the words they say, but who cares?
I know what you're thinking

Just when you think it's all dark
This is the start of something else

We all fall down
And we're tearing at the seams
And we all, we all fall down
But we're falling gracefully

You climb a mountain to lose yourself like a wind
In search of a feeling
Can you be answered? The truth's so hard to find
What is the meaning?

Just when you think it's all dark
This is the start of something else

We all fall down
And we're tearing at the seams
And we all, we all fall down
But we're falling gracefully

There's another way, somehow
There's another way
Another way, somehow

This is the start of something else

We all fall down
And we're tearing at the seams
And we all, we all fall down
But we're falling gracefully
We're falling gracefully