

I Still Belong To You

Lynn Anderson

I thought of leaving you a note but every time I start
There's knowing blue enough to write this feeling in my heart
Sometimes I packed to run away but where would I run to My heart would keep reminding me I still belong to you
Many times I've had the urge to pack my things and leave
But this feeling comes and goes so I'll never do
If I love you enough to stand the things you've put tme through
No matter what you'd do to me I still belong to you
I'm hurt inside but what's his pride it won't keep me warm at n ight
It has no arms to take me in and hold me like you do
What a little bit of love you give is all I'm clinging to
It takes your love to make me live I still belong to you
It takes your love to make me live I still belong to you
