Brotherhood of the Broken

Marlon Roudette

If not me then someone else Who will feel the pain I felt I may be an old face from a photograph You may look at me and laugh Till it's your turn to sing the blues Knowing what you had to lose I may be an old fool from her former life Till you find out what it's like She'll make you feel like you're the center Of a place without a trace Of any man who's gone before

Join us now The brotherhood of the broken And we'll be proud to welcome one of ours Join our chain Where all the links are broken I didn't know her that well I did not know her that well

And if not you then someone else Who will fall for her and melt And you'll be an old foe that she left for him Occasionally mentioned Till it's his turn and he'll relate To what it's like to be replaced You may be an old flame From her former days. Till he finds himself erased He may find her in a corner And provide for her a shoulder As she cries her tales of you He doesn't know he's just a ladder For her to climb up to the rooftops Where she'll find a better view

And he'll join us now The brotherhood of the broken And we'll be proud to welcome one of ours Join our chain Where all the links are broken He didn't know her that well You did not know her that well I did not know her so well We did not know her that well

You may hold her in the winter And feel like you're the only man Who's ever loved her before

So join us now In the brotherhood of the broken And we'll be proud to welcome one of ours Join our chain Where all the links are broken You didn't know her that well We did not know her that well We did not know her that well
