Save Yourself

Matchbook Romance

These words, fall from your mouth, and stab me in the back It should have never come to this Its too late, for your apologies They can't bring back all that you've taken from me

Stripped of my pride, and left for dead This time is the last time I take this abuse I've found my place, and this place is far away from you How can you say, I'm at fault the one to blame is you Stripped of my pride, and left for dead

I'm so tired of apologizing to myself for you And what you've done to me And I've tried, to forgive myself for caring about you There's nothing I can do...

This time is the last time I take this abuse I've found my place, and this place is far away from you

I'm so tired of apologizing to myself for you And what you've done to me And I've tried, to forgive myself for caring about you There's nothing I can do...