

I Only Want to Be the Man You Want

Matthew Ryan

The world is still small
The world is still small
The world is still small
The world is still small

I only want to be the man you want
I only want to be the man you want

It's going to unfold
It's going to fall wide
Like the dark does the day
Like a dream does your eyes

Still I want to be the man you want
I only want to be the man you want

Don't say it, don't say it
Your thoughts are loud, your worry heard
The sun, the sea, the stars
The air between to where you are
You should land, my hummingbird

Swimming pool blue
The sky was swimming pool blue
You were on the steep side
I was swimming towards you

Saying, "Hey, I want to be the man you want"
I only want to be the man you want
The ring that you twist, the song you hum
I only want to be the man you want

Don't say it, don't say it
Your thoughts are loud, your worry heard
You'll wave goodbye beside
The things you think will get you by
When you should land, my hummingbird
Maybe you should land, my hummingbird