How can we ever be free again?
After all the shouting and crying
Trying to hurt one another, for nothing
Things will be better again

Baby's in red, broken and bled By the flames that rule her fields of fire Baby's in blue, broken in two May the rains run through her fields of fire Her fields of fire

Now that the skies have gone clear again And we try to talk it through, peace of mind One day at a time we're praying Things will be better again

Baby's in red, broken and bled By the flames that rule her fields of fire Baby's in blue, broken in two May the rains run through her fields of fire Her fields of fire

Something is hurting way deep down inside Showing the scars of the ghosts that are hiding Stay in my arms Things will be better again

Baby's in red, broken and bled By the flames that rule her fields of fire Baby's in blue, broken in two May the rains run through her fields of fire

Baby's in red, broken and bled By the flames that rule her fields of fire Baby's in blue, broken in two Let the rains run through her fields of fire

Baby's in blue, what shall she do?
May the rains run through her fields of fire
Her fields of fire
