Roscoe

Midlake

Stone-cutters made them from stones Chosen specially for you and I Who will live inside?

The mountaineers gathered timber piled high In which to take along Traveling many miles knowing they'd get here

When they got here all exhausted On the roof leaks they got started And now when the rain comes we can be thankful When the mountaineers saw that everything fit They were glad and so they took off

Thought we were due for a change Or two around this place When they got back they're all mixed up With no one to stay with

The village used to be all one really needs Now it's filled with hundreds and hundreds of chemicals That mostly surround you, you wish to flee But it's not like you, so listen to me, listen to me

Oh, and when the morning comes
We will step outside
We will not find another man in sight
We like the newness, the newness of all
That has grown in our garden
Struggling for so long

Whenever I was a child I wonder what if my name had changed Into something more productive Like Roscoe been born in 1891 Waiting with my aunt Roselin

Thought we were due for a change Or two around this place When they got back they're all mixed up With no one to stay with

1891 they roamed around and foraged They made their house from cedars They made their house from stone

Well, they're a little like you And they're a little like me We have all we need

Thought we were due for a change Or two around this place
This place, this place

When they got back they're all mixed up With no one to stay with When they got back they're all mixed up

With no one to stay with
