I should have stayed in bed today I couldn't think of a positive thing to say My friends all hate me now I was selfish and realize now I have it a little time I thought about it a while ask to forgive and forget Crack a joke and a smile It's hard to say you're sorry when you know that you were wrong The weight of hurting words We often carry on The annoying things I don't mind so much anymore I've learned to tolerate the annoying four I won't let the sun go down when I've made a mistake I'd make right what I've wronged and give more that I take