Let It Go

Newsboys

You are waiting on a beach For a healing word to come Maybe an apology in a bottle Maybe a flare that says I'm sorry and the hurting leaves you numb will you forgive? will you forget? will you live what you know? He left his rights will you leave yours? you don't understand it let it go

You are waiting on a beach This is where the east meets west And as another sun sets on your anger The darkness laughs as the wound destroys and it turns your prayers to noise

Will you forgive? Wil you forget? will you live what you know? He left his rights will you leave yours? you won't understand it let it go

This bitterness you hide it seeps into your soul and it steals your joy til it's all you know let it go

Will you forgive? will you forget? will you live what you know? Beneath the cross you hear his words "Father forgive them" and you know you can't understand it let it go
