

How old are you feeling today?
With hot skies upon your head
With every second you get
Of the muted role in this play

How does it hurt to fake
The smile stuck up into your face
Benefits of human race
Take anything for your own sake

And now you're running too fast
Now you're running too fast
Away from so called normality

With me and your sanity
With me and your sanity
Where you could be the one

How old are you feeling today?
Locked up in your own little space
Breathing free and still with a grace
With a heart left in burning hay

How can you be the same?
With rest of glue under your nails
With sad ends of fairy-tales
With a brand new soul to wear

And now you're running too fast
Now you're running too fast
Away from so called normality
With...

With me and your sanity
With me and your sanity
Where you could be the one

And now you're running too fast
Now you're running too fast
Away from so called normality

With me and your sanity
With me and your sanity

One day
There's gonna be some way
For you
To love anyone
Anyone