Did somebody tell you what I couldn't tell you? I hope they did, I hope they didn't Well, I oughta regret it or should I forget it Whatever this is, it feels electric

You shot me a sweet look, gave me your yearbook But told me to sign it, it was a signal But I couldn't find the words I just couldn't find the nerve as usual

Here's my bright idea
I'll just disappear
I'll just fly away from here

And now you're in Hollywood, tight in my neighborhood Things are really looking up for you
An army of managers and lots of pretty boys lining up
To read for you

Oh, I'm pretty sure that it was you
That I bumped into just the other day at the record store
But I still don't have a clue
I just couldn't talk to you as usual

Here's my bright idea
I'll just disappear
Here's my bright idea
I'll just disappear
I'll just fly away from here

So I come to your event
In my well rehearsed mystique
I show up an hour late
But I've been ready for a week

And you float into the hallway Like some neon silohuette I'm slowly losing oxygen And my hands are soaking wet

All the cameras and reporters Piling up on one another Just to get a look at you They all want an interview

Then I make my move
Push them out of my way
But I still just don't know what to say

Here's my bright idea
I'll just disappear
Here's my bright idea
I'll just disappear
I'll just fly away from here

Here's my bright idea Here's my bright idea Here's my bright Here's my bright Here's my bright idea
