

Lighthouse

Otherwise

Trapped behind this tangled steel, at a loss for words,
I don't know how I really feel, did I get what I deserved?
A second chance or a second curse, I struggle to decide.
The ambulance outran the hearse, you sure you wanna ride?

There's something about the way you move,
That I can't explain.
There's something about the light in you,
And it takes away the pain.

The metal tears into my flesh, and poisons me inside,
But I won't be silenced like the rest, I'll never let this die.
'Cause broken bones can't break my soul, or take away my pride.
I'm gonna steal your precious heart of gold,
I want you by my side.

There's something about the way you move,
That I can't explain.
There's something about the light in you,
And it takes away the pain.

Bring me your light!
Bring me your light!
Light! Light!

There's something about the way you move,
That I can't explain.
There's something about the light in you,
And it takes away the pain.
It takes away the pain.
You take away the pain.
You take away the pain.