Breaking the Spell

Pendragon

Like a shooting star that comes once in every lifetime You came to me out of the blue And blue is your colour When the whole world falls into the sea There's still you and me

Through the wind and the rain and the snow I'd follow you up mountains, round the moon and the stars and b ack again And I'll always be waiting for you And when we cast that final spell We'll meet in our dreams, a place that no one else can go Don't ever let your love die Don't ever go breaking the spell
