Anniversary

The dawn shines her light To scare off the night And the sun from his slumber is woken The bells are ringing out As the town crier shouts Words too strong to be spoken

There's a rumble in the ground And the air fills with sound Trumpets in the wind are a' blowing The townsfolk peep Through the curtains of sleep To the sound of the cocks all a' crowin

The winds may blow Come rain, come slow Today's for you and me I gave my heart to you my love You gave your heart to me

The sun wears a smile And the clock winks its dial The clouds in the sky are unfolding The birds on the wing Like angels they sing The heavens are glowing all golden

The crowds all spill out They cheer and they shout Banners and flags are a' waving The flowers all a' bloom Blow kisses to the moon As blossom falls on the paving

The wind may blow Come rain, come snow Today's for you and me I gave my heart to you my love You gave your heart to me

The whole world roars A chorus of applause Strangers from Delhi to Dublin Are swept off their feet As they kiss on the street And the waters like champaigne are bubbling

The wind may blow Come rain, come snow Today's for you and me I gave my heart to you my love You gave your heart to me
