Transform

Powerman 5000

Oh yeah How come everything is not like it used to be And how come everything is never the same Your head spins, turns around a look of confusion This can't be real, I think it's only a game

They said one way, you're going One way to be and I can't believe in those words

The truth is there is no truth Mystified, can't compute Well I said forget about Everything you've heard

You won't last that long You won't last that long You might as well transform You won't last, you won't last

How come everything is not like it used to be And how come everything is never the same There you wanna, gonna get, first time, last place Nothing stays the same here, including your name

I've seen it all twice before They try to be original Disappoint the way of the world

The truth is there is no truth Mystified, can't compute Well I said forget about Everything you've heard

You won't last that long You won't last that long You might as well transform You won't last, you won't last

(Oh yeah, baby - be your right man that's the truth)

Hey, hey, hey Hey, hey, hey Hey, hey, hey Hey, hey, hey

What's the meaning You must be dreaming To want the meaning of life I heard you screaming To know the meaning To know the meaning of life

You won't last that long You won't last that long You might as well transform You won't last, you won't last You won't last that long (you won't last that long) You won't last that long (you won't last that long) You might as well transform (you might as well transform) You won't last, you won't last

You won't last that long You won't last that long You might as well transform You won't last, you won't last

You won't last that long You won't last that long You might as well transform You won't last, you won't last
