

Snow Falls in June

Ryan Bingham

If the snow falls in June
And leaves no excuses for summer
The sky fades from blue
And steals your light of day

Share with me your wounds
And open up your window to wonder
There's a helpless tune
That I could help you sing

If you ever call my name, I'll come running
When your sorrow sings in pain, I'll be there
If you ever feel a change in your weather
Take shelter with me here
My dear
If the snow is falling in June

If ever you lose
Whatever turns your tears into laughter
And the bridge is broke in two
Your love has lost the way

Just hand me over your blues
Break away the bad from your burden
Settle into your shoes
Let me tie your strings

If you ever call my name, I'll come running
When your sorrow sings in pain, I'll be there
If you ever feel a change in your weather
Take shelter with me here
My dear
If the snow is falling in June

My love for you is true
Without you I'm a shipwreck abandoned
Your my lady in the moon
A blanket made of stars

If you ever call my name, I'll come running
When your sorrow sings in pain, I'll be there
If you ever feel a change in your weather
Take shelter with me here

If you ever call my name, I'll come running
When your sorrow sings in pain, I'll be there
If you ever feel a change in your weather
Take shelter with me here
My dear
If the snow is falling in June
