The new years getting older, the February roses are withered aw ay

The sun keeps getting closer, sinking a little slower everyday Ooo it's getting louder at the lights, music clashing in the st reet, moon shining on the parking lot dolls

Tanned legs in the nights, sliding out of the sea, stilettos at the crosswalk

I graduated but every year in May I get that 'schools out' feel ing

I feel it creeping in every day's a weekend and I'm drowning in the freedom

Blame it on the bikinis, party girls, and martinis and the suns hine

Private school daughters that never go under water, keeping the ir hair just right

I know in September, I'm a remember how much I love her I'm single for the suh-uh-uh single for the summer

I've gone off the deep end, the company I'm keeping is messing me up

The good girls at home sleeping, while I'm out creeping til the sun comes up

Ooo I've got my phone faced down, and my hair combed back, riding round getting good at the game

Saying the wrong things right, chasing midtown girls holding ha nds and forgetting their names

I graduated but every year in May I get that 'schools out' feel ing

Don't wanna leave and pretend that I'm not a cheater and I can't help leaving

Blame it on the bikinis, party girls, and martinis and the suns hime

Private school daughters that never go under water keeping their hair just right

I know in September, I'm a remember how much I love her

I'm single for the suh-uh-uh single for the summer

All of these pretty young thangs (pretty young thangs)

Can make you forget a goodbye's sad

Tryin' to make a good guy bad

Blame it on the bikinis, party girls, and martinis and the suns hine

Private school daughters that never go under water keeping their hair just right

I know in September, I'm a remember how much I love her

I'm single for the suh-uh-uh single for the summer

I'm single for the suh-uh-uh single for the summer

Why do I love all of these city girls

Why do I love all of these city girls

Why do I love all of these city girls with pretty eyes, down on Demonbreun

Broken hearted rich girls, the debutantes, the small town runaw ays

All dolled up at the bar, with debit cards, they don't know how pretty they are

City girls, city girls