

Walking

Secret Service

I looked up when you asked for a chair
You looked tired, I saw raindrops
They were falling from your hair
You had tea, you said nothing at all
Nothing I can recall

It was late when they said they were closing
I payed, didn't know what to do
Still raining, you were tired, you were frozen
We walked. I was walking with you

Walking, walking in the rain
Walking I didn't know your name

You took my hand when we've walked for a while
Without a word, you just looked
You just looked at me and smiled
So strange, what did I feel for you
Was it real, was it true?

It was late when they said they were closing
I payed, didn't know what to do
Still raining, you were tired, you were frozen
We walked, I was walking with you

Walking, walking in the rain
Walking I didn't know your name
