

Still Miss You

Sinead Harnett

Your energy it scares me
I wanna protect my own
The center of my universe
But you are a black hole
And your darkness steals the light I built for both us
When you look me in the eyes I feel you cover me up
All the colors starts to fade and yet its not enough
You're stuck in a habit
And it's kinda tragic

I can't fix you up, oh no
I can't fix you up, no no
I can't fix you up, oh no
But I still miss you
But I still miss you
But I still miss you

I was like a pillar
Under your pedestal
Even when I held you up
You still found a way to fall, yeah
And you should've had the strength to love the both of us
But you never gave yourself enough to know what it was
And I offer you forgiveness but its not enough
You stuck in a habit
And it's kinda tragic

I can't fix you up, oh no
I can't fix you up, no no
I can't fix you up, oh no
But I still miss you

I'm a fool for trying
But I'm not a fool
The only thing I'm guilty of
Is loving you

I can't fix you up, oh no
I can't fix you up, no no
I can't fix you up, oh no
But I still miss you
But I still miss you
But I still miss you
