Human Hands

Sondre Lerche

I've been talking to the wall and it's been answering me Oh darling how I miss you I'm just the mere shadow of my former selfishness I crave the silhouette of your kiss With only the blue light of the TV on Lip reading threats and false alarms There's a boy somewhere holding hands with himself And a girl in a window on the Reeperbarn Whenever I put my foot in my mouth and you begin to doubt That it's you that I'm dreaming about Do I have to draw you a diagram? All I ever want is just to fall into your human hands

With the kings and queens of the dance hall craze Checkmate in three moves in your heyday But the girls don't listen to your line anymore Now you're part of someone else

On the factory floor and you still say "where's the action?" Now you manufacture happiness And get sold on the cheap for someone's satisfaction

All you toy soldiers and scaremongers Are you living in this world sometimes I wonder In between saying you've seen too much and saying you've seen i t all before

Tighter and tighter I hold you tightly You know I love you more than slightly Although I've never said it like this before
