

Walking on Thin Ice

Sophie B. Hawkins

Please take away from me all these things I do not need
Use me to keep your conscience clean
Show me what to do
To sacrifice for you I gladly give my life to you
I've wandered far enough to never have given up too much
And now I'm offering you everything I am

Give me your hand, I'm walking on thin ice
And I know you can deliver me more than good advice
Teach me with your deep love how to look inside
And not be afraid to shine

You are my destiny, the path I'm cutting tirelessly
And searching for you endlessly
Even when I'm surely in the heart of you
I still persist on collecting proof
That you are never known and though I feel you
I have grown to wonder if I'll ever really understand

Give me your hand, I'm walking on thin ice
And I know you can deliver me more than good advice
Teach me with your deep love how to look inside
And not be afraid to shine

I've been a fool pretending to be free
When all I could do was run away
When the spot light caught me
Heal me with your sweet love
'Cause I do believe when I open my eyes in front of you
I see

Give me your hand, I'm walking on thin ice
And I know you can deliver me more than good advice
Teach me with your deep love how to look inside
And not be afraid to shine

'Cause I've been a fool pretending to be free
When all I can do is run away
When the spot light fell on me
Heal me with your sweet, sweet love 'cause I do believe
When I open my eyes in front of you
It's the truth I see

I'm walking on this ice
I'm walking on thin ice
Oh, when I open my eyes
I'm walking on thin ice
Baby, don't you see?
I'm walking on thin ice
I'm walking on thin ice
Oh when I open my eyes
I'm walking on thin ice
