

Reborn

Souldrainer

My eyes are turned invards. I bend my spinal cord like countless times before. I am Reborn
My body aches as I fall down to the ground
I've rejoined with the pain

All these emotions, all silent moments, they fell like a thousand razor blades dancing on my skin
I am but one man, insignificant as one can be. I am Reborn

I flee. I hide, behind masks I control what you see when you look at me

I am not the one that was the day before. I am not the one I used to be
I used to be free. I used to be me. I've lost a piece of me to the dark

All these emotions, all silent moments, they fell like a thousand razor blades dancing on my skin
I am but one man, insignificant as one can be. I am Reborn

This vicious parts of me need to be silenced so I bathe in pain once again
It's conducted of free will, the price I pay is none compared to the reward
It's way too much to take so every now and then I slightly open the door of madness and air some of the pain, it's crucial, it's the one thing that keeps me from going insane.

All these emotions, all silent moments, they fell like a thousand razor blades dancing on my skin
I am but one man, insignificant as one can be. I am Reborn