Confidence

Status Quo

All she needs is a little confidence All she knows is to run and hide Through a lifetime of knocking back Oh, don't do this, you can't do that But she never learned to interact All she needs, little confidence

All she learned was a little self-defence Looking out over number one She's been diving and ducking round In and out the lost and found But it never laid her to the ground

All she needs is something to believe Sweet security All she needs, tries so hard to please But all she really, all she really needs Is the confidence

No chance of keeping her close to me No sense abusing her liberty

Through a lifetime of knocking back Oh, don't do this, you can't do that But she never learned to interact All she needs, is something to believe Sweet security All she needs, tries so hard to please All she really, all she really needs Is the confidence
