Hey Baby

Stephen Marley

Hey, baby, don't you worry even though the road is rocky
I'll be coming home to you again
'Cause if you thought that I was lost, I had to burn my cross
Now, I'm free from all these chains

I'm been gone a while away from you and I hope you overstand
That I've got to do what I must do to be a better man
'Cause if I was just to act a fool, do nothing with myself
And all my blessings would be curse, my world would crumble in

It's a joy when I sit down and think of the good times that we have
And what we do to make it through when the good turns to the ba d
Well, I hope you'll find it in your heart and know these words are true
And please don't fuss because I must go do what I must do

Hey, baby, don't you worry even though the road is rocky
I'll be coming home to you again
'Cause if you thought that I was lost, I had to burn my cross
Now, I'm free from all these chains

A time, a space, a difference place, how perfect we might be
I would be the wind that blows, you'd be that willow tree
And I could never bare the thought of you not by my side
So I would be the one to tell,