

Alive in an Ultra World

Steve Vai

I didn't know that the weight of the world
Could crush you with its demons
I didn't think I could rise above
Must have been a guardian angel

I can't believe how much blood is shed
From religion and it's politics
I can't speak for God
But I bet he's got nothing to do with it

But we're alive in an Ultra World
And it's bigger than life and it's good
To feel ultra real in an ultra life
'Cause you never might feel it again
You better hold on till the end

I didn't know how good I was
At emotional deception
You never see the writing on the wall
Unless you're the one who writes it

I only know that what I thought I knew
Was really my own dark perception
Heaven knows how I carried that cross
To a glorious crucifixion
