Girl I've gotta tell you something
That I don't ever say enough
You took my life from next to nothing
When I was down and things were rough

Another place, a new dimension That I had never been before And far beyond my comprehension You've opened up a buried door

Woman

I can't live without your love
Every moment
Is just what this dream's made of?
I can't live without your love
I can't live without your love

Now I'm feeling resolution

Every time you look at me Your beauty is my restitution The reason that this blind man sees

Woman

I can't live without your love Every moment Is just what this dream's made of? No, I can't live without your love I can't live without your love

Woman

I can't live without your love Every moment Is just what this dream's made of? No, I can't live without your love I can't live without your love
