

The Crossing

The Action Design

Somehow I know we've been here before,
Your hands are familiar, your eyes even more so,
What's in store for you and for me,
In another world we were meant to be together,

The faceless voices around us say, "too bad for you"
Once I was yours and I'll be yours again (but now it's time to go)
Once you were mine and you will be mine again (and you already know)

I believe we've watched the leaves turn in may,
Whatever became of our home in Madrid,
The pattern begins again,
Our names have changed but something remains,
Our flickering fire is the same,
Though we both know we'll just have to wait,
I'm confident we'll meet again someday,

Please for now just stay with me, close to me,
I don't know how long 'till we find each other again,

The faceless voices around us say, "too bad for you"
Once I was yours and I'll be yours again (but now it's time to go)
Once you were mine and you will be mine again (and you already know)

Once I was yours and I'll be yours again (but now it's time to go)
Once you were mine and you will be mine again (and you already know)
