

One Final, Sandi

The Bear Quartet

Woke up laughing
In the middle of the night
And it scared me
To feel so completely shut out
And always next to alright
And always next to daylight

So please let me remember it wrong
'Cause it's been so long
Since someone held me
As if to save me
From myself and everybody else

And all the words that went from mouth to mouth
Did they ever strike beauty
Stored in apartments
Filled with old doubts
Can you reach me,
The loving parts of me

Can you please let me remember it wrong
'Cause the truth is too
Strong it's something I never told
Anyone but the one I couldn't hold
