

You're a Song (That I Can't Sing)

The Four Seasons

You've only given me a flower
I wish I had the whole bouquet
If I should ask you for an hour
Is there a chance that you would stay
And maybe spend the day?

Can't seem to stop myself from caring
At least until the day I die
And if, by chance, you see me staring
You know I'm always gonna try
Though you may pass me by

Oh, you're a song (You're a song that I can't sing)
You're a word (You're a word that I can't say)
You're a song

Sometimes, I find myself believing
That I could spend the night with you
But some vibrations are deceiving
Though you may feel the way I do
You'd never see it through

Oh, you're a song (You're a song that I can't sing)
You're a game (You're a game that I can't play)
You're a song
You're a song (You're a song that I can't sing)
You're a game (You're a game that I can't play)
You're a song
You're a song (You're a song that I can't sing)
You're a song (You're a word that I can't say)
You're a song (You're a game that I can't play)
You're a song (You're a song that I can't sing)
