

Gregory's Chant

The Little Ones

The wind rushed in and circled our heads in a blazing trail
With outlines and figures of leaders Our eyes drapped in color with each passing hour and our bodys grew small

We arched our backs to see the light

In their heads they were so inspired
As they danced to their heart's desire