

And the Hills

The Marshall Tucker Band

Jennie Dances at a cafe down the road,
We throw her dollar bills and she puts on a show.
Noone really knows her, noone takes the blame.
We just enjoy her total lack of shame.

And she's proud to have a body that can kill.
And we don't mind the valleys and the hills,
And the hills.

Brenda likes to play on chairs, and shimmy to the beat.
Wearin' fancy underwear, that keeps you in your seat.
Leslie jammin' at the pole, and makin' them bodies
ache,
People come from miles around, just to see her shake.

And she's proud to have a body that can kill.
And we don't mind the valleys and the hills,
And the hills.

So if your ever passin' through this side of town,
Just come on in there's always somethin goin' down.
More sights than you can take in seven days a week,
They wrote the book if it's enlightenment you seek.

And she's proud to have a body that can kill.
And we don't mind the valleys and the hills,
And the hills.

And she's proud to have a body that can kill.
And we don't mind the valleys and the hills,
And the hills.
