

Face In The Crowd

The Nylons

Open your heart, your mind, your soul
Open your heart
Open your heart, your mind, your soul
Open your heart
Open your heart, your mind, your soul
Open your heart

You wake up in the morning, look in the mirror
Who can that girl be?
You can be sweet as sugar, tough as leather
With every trick you've got up your sleeve

Looking in the mirror you see a stranger
Someone you don't recognize
You're gettin' nearer to the danger
Of believing in your own disguise

Just a face in the crowd
You're lookin' for love, scared of learning how
Just a face in the crowd
Can't you see, you'll never be free

Open your heart, your mind, your soul
Open your heart
Open your heart, your mind, your soul
Open your heart

Back when you were young did you love someone
Was it a heartbreak hit and run?
Did he leave you empty handed, alone and stranded
Pickin' up the pieces one by one?

So you go with an air of a devil may care
You swear you'll never cry again
Your little masquerade is just a game you play
You're playin' but you'll never win

Just a face in the crowd
You're lookin' for love, afraid of learnin' how
Just a face in the crowd
Can't you see, you'll never be free

Oh no, can't you see, you'll never be free, uh huh?
Can't you see, you'll never be free?

Open your heart, your mind, your soul
Open your heart
Open your heart, your mind, your soul
Open your heart
Come on, show some emotion
