

In Reality

The Tiny

It wasn't really me you saw that time
Wasn't really tears that fell on my face
Are you really sure that what you saw
Couldn't just have been someone looking just like me?

It wasn't really love, so what the hell?
Didn't really know you quite that well
Must be that you remind me of this dream
This dream is starring someone just like you

I know I don't know you in reality, reality, reality
Though I would think that I could love someone like you
Someone like you, someone just like you

It wasn't meant for you to hear me say
I fear that love would never come my way
That I would rather live my life alone
Than find myself with buried dreams imprisoned with someone

No I know you don't know me in reality, reality, reality
Though would you think that you could love someone like me
Someone like me, someone just like me

I know that you don't know me in reality, reality, reality
Though would you think that you could love someone like me
Someone like me, someone like me, someone like me
Someone like me, someone just like me
In reality, reality, reality, reality, reality, reality