

Raindrop

The Wood Brothers

Broke a heart for a cheap thrill
Seemed worth it at the time
There's a hundred of 'em out there still
You can hear 'em all cryin'

You're just a muddy old rain drop
You're gonna dry up some day

You don't sleep you just lay awake and listen
To the sound of alone
Comin' up from the dark and you're wishin'
You didn't hear 'em all moan

Put a stain on an innocent heart
It just won't wash away

You thought you were a hammer of steel
But you're a rusty old spoke in the wheel
You're gonna quit comin' around
You're on the way down
