

Life is Good on the Open Road

Trampled by Turtles

Lyin' fever, a hidden moon
Restless wind and a callin' loon
Dying fast like the highest noon
Well I never learn from nothing

Feather falls the river light
The warm and shaking summer night
I have two friends but one is right
And he's older now than ever

Run so fast through the fields in May

And I forgot what I had to say
I've never been through a harder day
Than the one that left your ghost here

Life is good on the open road
We're closer now than we'll ever know
The light inside you comes and goes
But it never really goes out
