

Dear Self

Tyler Ward

I swore I'd never end up like this
Can't see past my own mistakes
Broken promises turned into habits
I've gotta do something about this
I know, I know I need to start listening

Dear self, I've gotta write this letter to you
I'll admit I messed up yeah a time or two
I finally get what I'm supposed to do
Let go, go
It's not too late to start over again
Lesson learned from those things I did
And what I thought I could never forgive
That's why I'm writing

Dear self
I need you to know that I'm sorry
I need you to know
Dear self
I need you to know that I'm sorry
I need you to know

Looking back on all this indecision
Finding answers in a bottle or two
Shouldn't be alive but amazing grace
Sometimes we all could use a rescue
I guess a broken heart is what I needed
To remind me she would never fill the deepest
Part of my soul and I will long for innocence
In a sense

Dear self, I've gotta write this letter to you
I'll admit I messed up yeah a time or two
I finally get what I'm supposed to do
Let go, go
It's not too late to start over again
Lesson learned from those things I did
And what I thought I could never forgive
That's why I'm writing

Dear self
I need you to know that I'm sorry
I need you to know
Dear self
I need you to know that I'm sorry
I need you to know

But honestly, I'll admit I'm afraid
Because love is the answer
And I've never let it in

I swore I'd never end up like this
Can't see past my own mistakes

Dear self, I've gotta write this letter to you
I'll admit I messed up yeah a time or two
I finally get what I'm supposed to do

Let go, go
It's not too late to start over again
Lesson learned from those things I did
And what I thought I could never forgive
That's why I'm writing

Dear self
I need you to know that I'm sorry
I need you to know
Dear self
I need you to know that I'm sorry
I need you to know

Dear self
I need you to know that I'm sorry
I need you to know
Dear self
I need you to know that I'm sorry
I need you to know