Cross That Line

What do you say To a talk over dinner Though we haven't Spoken for a while This time I won't take no For an answer You can't hide forever From your only son

Let's take a seat Right here by the window I remember how you like the view Now look me in the eye The truth I wanna hear

The time is right There's a shadow hanging Over me tonight

Tell me what you did now Even though it hurts to say It's always been a mystery Locked behind the door Tell me is it true now Do you need the heart to say it I always did my best for you Don't you lie Don't you lie no more

You tought me the way To be a winner And never to play On the losing side I guess that I turned out The way you always planned

So hard to cross that line But the words have got to come From you this time
