to whom it may concern your well-known address again, with no answer to my last request disregard ink spots my presentation consider my clear thoughts my speculations

what a warning
the way you're talking I'm more than worried

the sky is burning
the clouds are falling I'm more than sorry

you write me back blank empty words you don't write back acknowledge my statement a creased white receipt what a disappointment was I indiscreet? perhaps I'm impolite am I out of place? have I the right to write to express my case?

the time is coming
the world is dying
I'm more than worried

the clock is ticking
real action's missing
I'm more than sorry

I stay well-behaved waiting for the mail best regards, good world

I stay well-behaved well into my grave best regards, good world