

Searching

Votchi

I was sent to discover the other side of space,
To find some other places where could live the human race
Traveling at the speed of romance, much faster than light,
With no connection to people, with no despite of God.

I've been searching
so long, so long, so long...
I've been searching
so long, so long...

Something failed and my direction started to be wrong,
I'm loosing power, loosing speed and faith to carry on.
In my mind and in my soul I'm starting drift away
The only hope keeping me on is universal prayer:

Keep on searching
so long, so long, so long.
Keep on searching
so long, so long, so long.

When I thought my power and my will had all disappeared,
Something strange started moving me and turning on my feet.
I wonder if I could stay forever in this mighty place,
Humans are not the only race which God had left in space.

I've been searching
so long, so long, so long...
I've been searching
so long, so long...
