

The bags under my eyes get deeper
And I've become such a light sleeper
Anymore, I'll stay awake on my knees
I can't ignore
For so long I self-medicated
I think I because I never felt validated

I thought I was losing my mind
But this world was never so kind to me
I was always told to put my faith in god
But god isn't here
God isn't here
I never put faith in myself

Someone tell me where you find the will to live
And what's the cost
I've got so many words I've yet to say
But my voice is so lost

I promise I'll hang on, I promise
I don't know for how long, I don't know how long

Cause I've live the path less travelled Laid to waste by demons my heart has battled
I was always told to put my fair in a god I haven't seen

One that's never been there for me
I never put fair in myself, but god isn't here

I don't think I'll ever trust myself
But I've weighed my options, it's all I've got
And I'll make it somehow
No thanks to you, no thanks to you

I don't think I'll ever trust myself
But it's all I've got, God isn't here
