

Who Am I?

38th Parallel

Made like a mirror to reflect his glory
But the glass got smashed, bought a counterfeit story
We gave into pride
Sacrificed life, on that day we died inside
Outside we ignited a rebellion,
An infectious disease that labels us felons
Cold and alone,
ever wandering in search of a home

Refrain:

Hearts breaking and shaking in time with our hearts vibrating
We say bridges to yesterday are burned Seasons over, all those leaves have turned
But we cannot look now
We can only keep our gaze locked on the ground
And here we stand with wide eyes as our world comes crashing down

Chorus

Who am I to say right ?
Who am I to say you're wrong ?
Play judge, look you in the eye,
Who am I to throw the stones

I remember when trust went for free
Sold for a smile on the face of a fantasy
Truth found her home in the pages of fairy tales
Decadent words formed the phrases for dreams that failed
Now trust is a costly commodity
Giving it away is the mark of absurdity
And truth is a homeless traveler
Hoping in the night to be found

Chorus

And we wave goodbye to our innocence
And we wave goodbye to our ignorance
And we wave goodbye to our nursery mindsets
Abandoning cribs of complacency

Chorus
