

Waves of anger fill my sea
Drifting into apogee
Incentives drive ideology
While we spill our blood for hypocrisy
All I see is broken keys gates
Locked by hegemony
Disconnected memories
Filled with human treachery

Abandoned like the american dream
Begging you to govern thee
Celebrate moral vanity
With a permawar for eternity
Cut my tongue like an amputee
With phantom love that used to be
Fading like my illusion of free
Soon there'll be nothing left of me

I used to have something to say
Now I spare myself the pain
Abduct myself past this hell
And on to higher plane I drift away
I drift away
I drift away
I drift away

Lusting to return of flame
No flesh or light my shell decays
Abduct myself past this hell
And on to higher plane I drift away
I drift away

Now I just spare myself the pain

Searching for the vital stream
Leave my home like a refugee
Disconnect anxiety as I disappear inside my dream

I used to have something to say
Now I spare myself the pain
Abduct myself past this hell
And on to higher plane
I drift away

A pathless black of cosmic veins
A nameless one a thousand names
No fear of why accepting fate
This nothingness we all vibrate
It guides us through the liminal state
Becoming one with ancient ways
Reveals the form of endless rays
And now I obliterate
I drift away
I drift away

Now I spare myself the pain
I used to have something to say

I drift away...
