Young and Dead

A Global Threat

t the shows and on the street Some punks just won't accept you think differently The way you live it was the wrong way to be Vegetarian or not, drug free or drunk There's always someone who says you're not a punk They're always somebody who tells you that you're wrong We bitch about what we see on the daily news But we cant accept each others views Bow what will we do at the end of our fuse

And now we're young and dead

Instead of respecting our differences in thought We waste time arguing about what's right and what is not And some revert to all the violence they've been taught Opinions vary on what is Punk and what it does But its not anything until we've earned each others trust And if it ever happens it is by the fault of all of us There's two options out there for the youth Just two options and we've got to choose United we win, divided we lose

And now we're young and dead

Think about your views The lifestyle that you choose And find out what it means to you

Some have had a negative outlook on it from the start How can you ignore when something's coming from the heart If nothing can unite us and nothing's worth a chance Then why are we all singing what they're telling us we can't

You've buried any bridge we've come across And you're the reason for the battles we've lost When you fight your war just don't forget the cost

And now we're young and dead
