

The Torch and The Name

A Loss for Words

I can't see... the sunlight anymore.
I swear you stole my eyes.
You could split the skyline with machetes,
To set the atmosphere on fire.
The Fallout snows down in red and blue.
The asphalt bubbles under my feet with a need to follow you.
We will set the sky ablaze.
We can blow against the breeze.
I lit a flame to our house, and our vanities,
With a need to follow you.
You carry the torch and the name,
The one who fanned the flames.
I'll be glad to say I knew you.
You knocked me down, ya brushed me off
With a brush fire, and a need to follow you
We will set the sky ablaze.
We can blow against the breeze.
I lit a flame to our house, and our vanities
With a need to follow you.
I wander around blindly.
I wander around blindly without you.
You carry the torch and the name,
The one who fanned the flames.
I'll be glad to say I knew you.
We will set the sky ablaze.
We can blow against the breeze.
I lit a flame to our house, and our vanities
With a need to follow you.
Hey, I wander around blindly.
Hey, I wander around blindly without you.
