Things Aren't So Beautiful Now (Part 1)

A Thorn For Every Heart

Hospital, the only thing she knows Waiting around can feel like forever She knows she's not there at all And everything I see repeats over and over.

I, I, I can't breathe.

Eyes toward the silver screen We watch it fade to black One last climatic scene. We watch the roles play back

It's not right He leads a double life

A silver bullet tonight She's been advised But nothings right All the things he's done have come to destroy their lives

And in her mind she's terrified Of all the things she's yet to find The moon is full, and she's done her fill of life

Pushed away into the side-lines Where she's waiting most of her life

She's bonded to his ways, she can't be dead She's been that way for a long time

Hospital, the only thing she knows Waiting around can feel like forever She knows she's not there at all And everything I see repeats over and over

I, I, I can't breathe

Look at you now, all your worries and regrets (Won't forget, won't forget)

Why she still comes to stay with me.. (I'll forget.)

(Is he okay?..)

(I'm sorry theres no visitors)