Stars Will Fall

Aaron Shust

When there's no breath in my lungs to scream and there's no strength left inside of me and there's no light that my eyes can see I will say your name
I will say your name

And stars will fall like rain all the heavens and the earth will start to shake every mountain will be moved and be cast away at the mention of your name
at the mention of your name

when hope is a lost long friend and the broken that was meant to bend lift the wounds that will never mend
I will say your name
I will say your name

at the mention of your name

Jesus
I cry Jesus
Jesus
I cry Jesus

And stars will fall like rain
all the heavens and the earth will start to shake
every mountain will be moved and be cast away
at the mention of your name
at the mention of your name
