

If Only

Abandoned Pools

The weight of the world gently hangs above your head
The consequence slowly spins in words you've said
And it feels like if only the sun and the moon would explode
Everything would be all right
If only slowly our lives would unfold
If only
All you want is a brand new start
A fortress built way up high around your heart
If only you and I were stardust